3. Historical Portraits (3)

The portrait purporting to be of Hugh O'Neill in this lot is actually of Justin of Nassau or Justinus van Nassau, who was the only extramarital child of William the Silent. The subject in the painting, on which the portrait in this lot is based, continues to be incorrectly identified as Hugh O'Neill., who is unlikely ever to have worn a Dutch lace collar. We wish to thank Crónán Ó Doibhlin for his assistance with this lot.

35. 1866-67 Bonds of The Irish Republic issued by the Fenians in the USA - a unique collection.

This lot includes five (not three as stated in the catalogue) die proofs of the portrait vignettes intended for inclusion on the bonds, including Robert Emmett and Lord Edward Fitzgerald. Three of these were used on high value bonds including One Hundred Dollars and Five Hundred Dollars signed Sullivan and Scanlan.

1890 Charles Stewart Parnell ceremonial baton.

The date should read 1890. The baton is 28.5 inches long. The only other example of this baton or staff that is recorded was sold at Whyte's on 17 September, 2016 as lot 37. That example bore a plaque inscribed 'Presented to - Mr M. J. Murray - Chief Marshall of the - Parnell Anniversary Demonstration - held 7th Oct. 1890 - by the Parnell Anniversary Committee'. Presumably this example was also given to one of the organisers of the demonstration.
